The classic King Seiko 56KS, with its Cal. 562x movement, is a lovely daily-wear watch and a highlight of my own collection. What stands out about the King Seiko is its elegant and timeless design and the excellent performance of the 5626 movement. It is reminiscent of the legendary 1967 Grand Seiko "44GS"; but perhaps even more attractively rendered with long, ...

Seiko 5626 energy storage

The ultimate King Seiko. For many people the 5626-7110 is the epitome of the automatic King Seiko. In very superficial terms, the case retains the look of the 5626-7000, although the lugs are more sharply pointed and the side profile is different. The dial was redesigned with narrower hour markers. The hands, however, were the same.

Gorgeous King Seiko KS Hi-beat 5626-7000, from August 1968, fitted with a high range 5626 automatic movement, with stop second and manual winding. The King Seiko range was at that time, along with the Grand Seiko, the top of the Seiko range. ... The 5626-7000 has become one of the most iconic King Seiko watches ever produced. It 5626 movement with 25 jewels is a hi-beat 28800 bpm which hand winds, hacks and features a micro-regulator - all of this was far superior to other high end Seiko movements of the time.
